Solving Situations

During the past two terms the staff have developed and implemented a new problem solving model with the students. Referred to as STAR, it represents – Sort, Think, Action and Reflect. The model is designed to assist students to think about a problem they have, try to sort it out, act on it and then reflect on the success they had with the problem. We are referring to problems as situations that can be resolved with time, understanding and patience. It is important that children learn that not all problems/situations can be easily solved. This relates to life challenges as well as academic problems. We believe this model empowers students and helps them to build resilience, critical thinking and the need for persistence. After all, we do not want our children to grow up thinking everything is easy and can be solved. We are applying this model to the yard with regard to behaviour and friendship issues as well as in our learning. During learning activities, students are often asked to solve a situation whether it is in literacy, mathematics, science or technology for example and they then use this model to help guide them through the process. We thought we would share this model with parents – some of you may have already seen it, so you can follow what the children are talking about when they are trying to solve a situation.

Look for these posters in the Classroom.
Firstly, we worked in small groups to plan and draw a storyboard for our animation. Secondly, we created our characters and props by moulding clay into a variety of shapes and sizes. Thirdly, we painted a backdrop for each scene in our story. Finally, we used the app iStopmotion on the iPad to capture different shots and create our animated story.
